DIGITAL AND INTERACTIVE MEDIA ARTS PROFILE

According to the Occupational Outlook Handbook, employment of digital and interactive media artists is projected to grow 8 percent from 2016 to 2026, about as fast as the average for all occupations. Projected growth will be due to increased demand for animation and visual effects in video games, movies, and television. Job growth may be slowed, however, by companies hiring animators and artists who work overseas.

Consumers will continue to demand more realistic video games, movie and television special effects, and three-dimensional movies. This will create demand for newer computer hardware, which will enhance the complexity of animation and visual effects. Additional multimedia artists will be required to meet this increased demand. Further, an increased demand for computer graphics for mobile devices, such as smart phones, will lead to more job opportunities. Multimedia artists will be needed to create animation for games and applications for mobile devices.

At WCSU, The Communication & Media Arts Department has three degrees in which to choose: Communication, Media Arts Production, and Digital & Interactive Media Arts: an interdisciplinary degree between Media Production (Macriscostas), Art (VPAC), and Computer Science (Macriscostas).

The Communication degree and Communication Studies Major focuses on students who major in communication and helps them prepare for graduate studies or careers directly related to: managing interaction in settings such as social service agencies, small businesses, and corporations; media use, analysis and criticism; and related fields that require public speaking, persuasion, and application or analysis of interpersonal and public speaking skills.

The Media Arts degree and Media Production Major helps students prepare for graduate studies or careers directly related to: media creation (digital film, television, video, web), media performance, media use, analysis, and criticism. It is an applied, experientially-based degree.
