The famous Blue Beryl—a set of 80 medical paintings completed 300 years ago in Tibet—has been exactly recreated and brought to the West.

Today, the West's growing fascination with Tibetan culture and increasing acceptance of traditional Tibetan medicine make this faithful recreation of the complete set of fascinating and beautiful Blue Beryl paintings of interest to both scholars and the public.

His Holiness The Dalai Lama blessed these paintings September 16, 2003, at a monastery in Indiana.
